Lacombe Company Make Good Brick.

The Lacombe Brick Tile & Cement Company have burned their first kiln of brick, and it has turned out good enough to satisfy the most exacting. The brick are a beautiful red and in quality cannot be surpassed. In the opinion of competent judges we have in this yard the best brick clay in the entire province of Alberta, and the quality and appearance of this first kiln fully bears out the opinion. The Company are now at work filling a second kiln and with good weather will no doubt get a third kiln burned before winter sets in. This is particularly gratifying to the men who have taken hold to build up this industry in Lacombe, as it was freely predicted by the wise men of the community at the outset that no brick could be made by the Company this year. A sample from this first kiln can be seen at the Advertiser office.

Sunday, September 29, will be observed as Young People's Day in the Methodist church. In the morning Rev. H. E. Gordon will preach a sermon to the children. At 3 o'clock there will be a rally of parents and children at Sunday School. The Rally Day Temperance programme will be used by the whole school. In the evening the pastor will preach a sermon "An Urgent Message" especially to young men. Everybody is invited at all the services of the day.

ALBERTA PRESS ASSOCIATION

The following resolutions, of general interest, were adopted at the recent meeting of the Alberta and Eastern British Columbia Press Association, at Cranbrook:

"Whereas the press of Alberta and eastern British Columbia covers a territory in which it is daily becoming more necessary that there be efficient dissemination of views and thoughts loyal to the dominion and empire, a necessity occasioned more particularly by the immigration of persons of all nationalities; and whereas such views and thoughts properly disseminated must assist most materially in the rapid development of such territory on lines tending to promote a fit and proper national spirit,

"Therefore, be it resolved that the newspapers of this territory, being the factor in creating and moulding public sentiment, here as elsewhere throughout the civilized world, should receive every encouragement from and the hearty co-operation of the C. P. R. telegraphic service,

"And be it further resolved, that the C. P. R., a corporation vitally concerned in this development and to a very large extent controlling the news service of the west, should supply at reasonable figures a more adequate and more intelligent service, facilitating the circulation of Canadian and British news in particular, the present service being unanimously considered both prohibitive in price and lacking in the aforesaid essentials."

The following resolution was printed on handsome cards and signed by all in attendance at the convention forming a very pleasing souvenir of a most enjoyable and profitable gathering:

"Be it resolved by the Alberta and Eastern British Columbia Press Association, in annual convention assembled at Cranbrook, this 13th and 14th days of September, A. D. 1907:

"That this convention place on record its appreciation and gratefulness for the spontaneous reception and hearty welcome accorded by the civic authorities and the good people of Cranbrook;

"That we most heartily commend those having the same in charge for the splendid arrangements and that the ladies reception committee be given words of special commendation for the excellent services rendered by them;

"That the decoration of the stores and the display of products of this most fruitful district be most highly complimented;

"That this resolution be printed and that copies of the same be given to the mayor, the council, the president of the board of trade and the editors of the Prospector and the Cranbrook Herald:

"That the names of the visiting brethren and their wives be attached to the same."

What Provincial Rights Are.

"I am a Canadian, and in doing what is just and fair by British Columbia, I am aiding to the best of my ability the best interests of the Dominion." This statement of Hon. Richard McBride is axiomatic. Every citizen of the Dominion who upholds the constitutional rights of his province is a true Canadian. Sectionalism is something far different from loyalty to the principle of local self government, and of sectionalism Mr. McBride showed his dislike when he brought about the repeal of the exceedingly popular law for the taxing of commercial travellers from parts of Canada outside of British Columbia. Provincial rights are not the rights of the separate territorial units that make up the Dominion, but they are the fundamental liberties of the people of Canada. Any power that interferes with these rights strikes at the freedom of the Canadian citizen. That grave political offense the Laurier government is habitually committing.—Victoria Colonist.

A Leader With a Defined Policy.

Mr. Borden's speech at Halifax revealed qualities of leadership that should prove somewhat disconcerting to those Grits who are prone to chuckle over the fallacy that among the Conservatives there is a lack of a leader.

Mr. Borden was not extreme. He was not timid. There were no rash, untrue, or ill-considered statements. The address was a comprehensive, accurate and convincing exposition of Conservative policy, which showed that the speaker has an excellent grasp of existing conditions and is ready with remedies to apply to existing evils.—Saskatoon Capital.

Scots Demand Home Rule.

Edinburg, Sept. 15.—Scotland may prove as troublesome to England as Ireland is and has ever been. The cry throughout Scotland today is "home rule." Like the Irish Sinn Fein, Scotland has now a society called "Young Scots," which is agitating in every possible manner for the government of Scotland by Scotsmen. The "Young Scots" league has thousands of adherents, and the abandonment by the British government the other day of Scotland brought many more beneath the banner of Scotland. There is no possibility that Scotland will get home rule any more than will Ireland yet the next few months will show not to England alone, but to the whole world that Scotland is determined to no longer suffer at the hands of parliament.

Cow Testing Associations.

The interest taken by the dairy farmers in the work of the cow testing associations organized by the Branch of the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, Ottawa, is steadily increasing. Evidence of this is seen in two or three ways. The milk record sheets being tabulated daily show a larger number of cows whose milk is being weighed and sampled six times a month, and better still there is an increase in the yield. That is to say that the second and third tests in the various localities show a marked improvement on the first. This will have been noticed in the summaries of the tests published from time to time. The Dominion officials are doing valuable educational work on their rounds, for the custom is increasing of farmers dropping in while the testing is in progress to ask many questions about the test, the work of the associations, improving herds, feeding, churning at home, and in fact on every phase of dairy work.

The importance of succulent feed is well illustrated by the yield of a herd in the St. Prosper, Que. association. On June 5 the yield of 11 cows was 285 lb. of milk; they had been on dry feed, and pastures were backward. On June 25 the same 11 cows gave 371 lb. milk. At a moderate estimate that herd could easily have given 1200 lb. more milk during the month, if succulent feed had been available. What applies here applies to hundreds of other herds. There would be an enormous increase in the general flow of milk and a vast improvement in our dairy herds if provision were made for green or soiling crops ensilage and succulent feed generally to tide over backward seasons and dry hot spells. Have you built a silo yet? Feeding ensilage almost invariably means making more money from the same number of cows.

Attention was lately called by "Arboriculture" to the way farmers rob themselves when they cut down small trees. The writer says that ten years ago he saw in Virginia about thirteen thousand apple-barrels held together by hickory hoops to make which sixty-four thousand young hickory trees had been cut down. The barrel-hoops had been sold for about four hundred dollars. If the trees had been allowed to grow, they would have been big enough in a few years for cutting up into carriage-spokes, and would have produced, at the present price of thirty-five dollars a thousand, spokes worth more than eight hundred thousand dollars. This is the kind of forestry argument that ought to appeal to owners of brush lots.

Borden's Meetings.

The dates set for the Conservative leader R. L. Borden's meetings in Alberta are as follows: Lethbridge, October 2. Macleod, October 2. Medicine Hat, October 3. Calgary, October 4. Red Deer, October 7. Wetaskiwin, October 8. Edmonton, October 9. Vermilion, October 10.

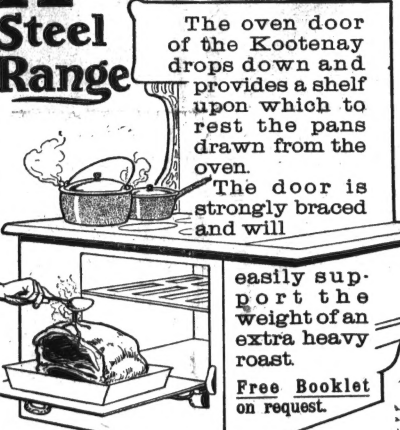

Cough Caution

Beware, positive never poison your lungs. If you cough—every time you breathe—stop and take Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Don't blindly suppress it with a suppressant poison. It's strange how soon things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough suppressants or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform or other poisons, and now a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, children are in poor Cough Mitium." Good! Very good! Hereafter for this very reason mothers and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's label—and none in the medicine, else it would be on the label. And it's not only safe, but is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chances when you have a cough. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side for demanding

Try This For Your Cough.
To relieve a cough or break up a cold in twenty-four hours, the following simple formula, the ingredients of which can be obtained at any good prescription drug list at small cost, is all that is required: Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), one-half ounce; Glycerine, two ounces; good Whisky, a half pint. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours. The desired results can not be obtained unless the ingredients are pure. It is therefore better to purchase the ingredients separately and prepare the mixture yourself. Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased in the original half-ounce vial, which druggists buy for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case which protects the Oil from exposure to light. Around the wooden case is an engraved wrapper with the name—'Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)'—plainly printed thereon. There are many imitations and cheap reproductions of Pine, but these only create coughs, and never effect the desired results.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.
Don't seek other cures at 'Hay Fever Season', don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs—prevent the disease. Hay Fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgement in your throat and lungs. Medicines won't reach them there, but Catarrhona is sure death to germs. Start now to use Catarrhona. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and U. S. Sent to any address for $1.00 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. or Kingston, Ont.

Fast Time by Overcast Mail.
Winnipeg, Sept. 21.—The fastest time ever recorded by a passenger train on the western lines of the C. P. R. was made by the overcast mail eastbound, which passed through the city yesterday. The run from Broadway to Brandon, a distance of 131 miles, was made in two hours and eleven minutes, a sustained rate of over sixty miles to the hour. It required fourteen minutes to cover the first eight miles out of Broadway, where there is a hard grade. The six minutes lost here was made up later when the train at times attained a velocity of almost 70 miles an hour; 96 consecutive miles were covered in 97 minutes. There was no stop made in the entire distance from Broadway to Brandon.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—A young man named Clarence Clifford Chandler, employed in Toronto as a mail carrier, was arrested this morning while at work in a building by Acting Detective Young, on a charge of having robbed the mails. When searched twenty-six supposed letters were found in his pocket, and some marked bills and silver coins. He was at once lodged in No. 1 police station, and a search made at his home in Lima place. Among the articles found by the police was a diamond ring and pearl sunburst, which the police say Chandler admitted having stolen from letters and a part of a box of cigars, which is said to have been taken from the post office at Kew Beach.

Under Twine Inspector Doing Good Work.
Winnipeg, Sept. 25.—Dominion Inspector of binder twine, Joseph L. Haycock, has collected fines aggregating $3,800 within a short time from firms selling twine of short measure. One American firm, however, which was fined $1,475 had in all to pay $12,000 for its crooked work. The firm had sold 1180 bales of twine which contained 500 feet instead of 600 feet that was stamped on package. The twine was seized and the fine of $1 placed on each bale. The company bought the twine back at 25 cents each on condition that they were to re-tie and 850 tons had been sold. This cost $60 per ton and reduced the value of the twine by $40 per ton or $1,000.

Immigrants Must Have Money.
Ottawa, Sept. 25.—The Dominion government has under consideration a proposition to amend the regulations in regard to immigration so that all immigrants must have a certain amount of money in their possession before being allowed to land. Hitherto there has been no money qualification for entering Canada, as there is in the United States. In this country it has always been regarded that an able bodied man willing to work and without a dollar in his pocket, was as good as an asset to the country as the man who had some cash, but was not so particular about getting work. However in aid in solving the question of Oriental immigration, the Dominion superintendent of immigration, W. D. Scott has recommended that a money qualification be added to the regulations. This can be done under the act by the government passing an order-in-council.

Stomach troubles, heart and kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Your health is certainly worth this simple trial. Sold by all dealers.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 21.—A special to the Oregonian from Seattle says that seventy-seven Japanese miners arriving at Astor Thursday to work in the mines, were escorted to the river steamer Glenora by 300 whites yesterday and sent back toward Vancouver. The white miners served notice upon the Japanese that if they did not stay away violence would be shown in protecting the diggings against Asiatic labor. The Japs are almost destitute and will be turned loose at Skagway, Alaska.

By INA WRIGHT HANSON.
Copyright, 1917, by Mary McKinn.

In the birch blossom path I saw her first, and my mind was full of annoyance because my sister, who kept my house, should invite a girl to visit her, and then insist that it was my duty to help entertain her. I would do my best of the sort, I was thinking, when a stern in the white blossomed pathway brought her to my view.

The slim slender and had a great mass of brownish yellow hair, plumed up with gold pins, one of which glowed eccentrically at me with its topaz eyes. While I was wondering why she didn't comb her hair smoothly away from her face, and her eyes, of a wonderful vivid blue, seemed to look down into my very soul.

"Stand perfectly still, Mr. Angove," she said to my eyes. Is there anything so sweet in this world more of a birch path in springtime? Don't open them, Mr. Angove. I want you to get the fragrance uninterrupted by any other means."

"Why I should have stood there with my foolish eyes shut tight I don't know, but I did until she gave me permission to look at the white teeth and eyes and at her. Then quite suddenly she stroked the rest of the way together. I began to feel interested in knowing what she would say when we came to the end of the path and she said—

"Why, I don't know your name," I said abruptly.

"At first you are going to address me as Miss Britland," she replied promptly. "Afterward you will call me Frances, and at the end you will call me Caprice."

"Why in the world should I call you Caprice?" I asked.

"I don't know," she said. "Don't you ever say things just as if somebody beside of you were saying them with your own tongue?"

My reply to this amazing question was hindered by the ending of the birch bushes. We stood facing a little pagoda of white marble. I looked at the girl. Her hands were tensely clasped; her red lips were quivering.

"It's like walking down the pathway of love and suddenly coming to the very temple of love itself," she exclaimed.

I trembled. Why should my sister prattle to strangers of our ancestors' conceptions? She seemed to divine my thoughts.

"Why do you look at me like that? What is it? What does it mean?"

I showed her the inscription on the stone threshold—"Temple of Love"—and with a sudden swift glance she swept above the lettering. Then she sprang up. "Come, Mr. Angove," she cried gaily; "I will run a race with you."

She back along the birch path we ran like two children, and only my sister's amused smile at the end of the race reminded me of my forgotten dignity. I spent the rest of the day among my books and alone.

Next morning Miss Britland and I selected a walk opposite the birch path. This was a straight path through an avenue of stately pines. Yesterday the path had been fanciful or merry; this day she was serious. She walked steadily by me, talking quite earnestly of the future of radium. I began to see why I might some time call her Caprice.

"This is the path of the pines," I said when we had exhausted radium. "We should have taken the pine first, for it leads straight to the temple, while the birch path meanders foolishly this way and that and makes us take unnecessary steps to reach the same place."

"One welcomes unnecessary steps when one walks upon the birch path," she answered. "Anyway, you should not have told me that this path leads to the same place. It would have been nicer for me to discover it for myself."

"So it would," I answered humbly. "How shall I atone?"

"By telling me of yourself," she replied.

"There isn't much to tell," I said, feeling pleased at her interest. "We are in the pagoda, and the temple is the temple of love. Let him who will praise of long growing affections. To me love came in the sun rises suddenly over the mountain."

I told her of my life as a boy in college, as a man in the business world, all this estate came to me, neglected and long unvisited.

Another day I told her about the temple, how my ancestor had laid out these paths to try to lead her to his fair young wife and her love for him— one path, quick and true as the compass needle to the temple, while the birch path meanders foolishly this way and that and makes us take unnecessary steps to reach the same place."

"What was the young wife's name?" she asked.

"I don't know. His diary is full of her beauty and sweetness and accomplishments, but I never mentions her name. He had his own names for her—Boulevard, Starlight, Heartsease. Love that should not die when the bodies of the lovers are dust."

"How do you know that it does?" she demanded. "How do you know that their souls are living again and knowing just the same?"

She said so many strange thoughts, like little Frances, and she had such tiny moods—gay, serious, learned, childlike. How I loved her! I could not wait much longer to tell her so but I seemed to lack the right words. One day in the temple I had been so silent, though I said not realized it till she interrupted my thoughts most amusingly.

"I wish that it could speak, for it looks so very kindly that its voice must needs be pleasant," she quoted. "It is going to speak," I said, turned suddenly toward her, but she pointed something toward the door.

Town the path of the pines came my sister, eager, breathless, waving a letter.

"A secret drawer in the wall, back of my wardrobe," she gasped. "And three nights since she has been here, Mrs. Frances dreamed of finding her letter."

I saw with a curious feeling the peculiar chirography of my ancestor I read aloud:

"Look under the threshold of the temple, thou man of my own blood, but think not to appropriate to yourself that which is not thine. They are for her whom thou lovest as I loved my own Caprice."

"Dig, dig!" exclaimed my sister, dropping on her knees and trying to pry up the step with her bare hands. "Don't sit there and stare at each other, you two. Let's dig what's here. It was not a hard task, for time and loosened the marble steps till they were easily removed. It was an exciting moment when my sister eagerly dragged to view a small iron box."

"Open it, brother," she cried.

"Jewels!" cried the sweet, excited voice of my dear girl. "They are for her whom thou lovest as I loved my own Caprice."

I have always admired my sister, but never more than at that moment when her curiosity must have been well nigh uncontrollable. She cast one swift look at us two; then she started up the pine path.

"That careless Martha is letting the bread turn," she called back, over her motherly shoulder.

I took a string of diamonds from the box and put them on my sweetest sister's neck. An amethyst in its heart setting I placed at her white throat, a coronet of pearls I placed on her golden hair. On her slender, trembling fingers I put rings—rubies, diamonds, emeralds. On her pretty arms I hung bracelets of queer design, and then I fastened her girlish—dull gold set with a great white opal which broke into marvelous colors as my sweetheart touched it reverently.

When I had finished, she looked like a sweet barbaric princess. I knelt before her, kissing her hand.

"For I love you as he loved—Caprice," I whispered.

"Maybe I am his Caprice," she answered dreamily. "And maybe you are he."

"Tell me that you love me, dear," I pleaded.

She put her flower-like face to mine. "My first love was my sister and my last was the same, beloved," she answered.

"And the thought is this—that you have a heart for those belated waking queens might keep right."

Phoenix Park, Dublin.

Of all the pleasure grounds we saw at our tour, this one was the best. In Dublin, the best, says a writer in the Guinness. It covers nearly 2,000 acres, and the seven mile drive around it is delightful.

Acres of it are left to citizens for pasture, and herds of fat kine lazily chewing under the trees or idly standing in a cool stream of give a touch not found in any other resort.

On one plot when we were there a detail of his majesty's redcoats were practicing target shooting. You could see three dragons back from a cross country run. The vice royal lodge, plain and white, looked, in spite of the vastness of the green ground about it, bold and uninviting in the glare of the August sun.

At the end of the house, but a long way from it, is the spot where Cavendish and Burke were murdered some years ago. In vain do the gardeners try to keep grass about it, as fast as it grows it is taken up and carried off by relic hunters.

Scores of deer were roaming about, so tame that they could be caught close to our car. One big stretch of rolling land was crossed and recrossed with what looked in the distance like ditches. They are trenches our driver told us, into which at morning and night water is pumped for the hundreds to drink.

The Calligraphy of the Dumas.

Both the Dumas' hands are those of busy men, but the elder Dumas could go on forever. He never stopped to punctuate. One of his literary canons was that a clear, punctuated text, there is a good deal in this. These men never missed a comma, semicolon, colon or full stop. He had not the father's facility, which resembled a leaf of green vegetable at the end of the rainy season.

The younger Dumas beat his brains terribly and forced them to bring forth plays, but his letters were jeux d'esprit. He ought to have been a preaching monk or an advocate. He liked to preach and to point morals, and to kiss his fair penitents to give them real cause to cry. But he was not the brute he liked to pass for being. Nothing can be more refined than his hand-writing. "The original manuscripts of his plays are scarcely legible, the corrections and erasures are so numerous that he did not let the copyist or, indeed, any stranger see them, but re-wrote and added pungent and pregnant sentences as he wrote. The thoughts of some authors are the best. They were the worst of Dumas if unless when he was answering a letter—answer which he wrote in a few minutes of steel responding to that Sparks flew. If there was an explosive about it went off—London Truth.

The Gliottli Cabinet.

Another member of the Gliottli cabinet in Italy has fallen a victim to the fatality which seems to dog the footsteps. Signor Majorana, the minister of the treasury, the youngest and most promising member of the government, who was publicly designated as his successor by Signor Gliottli last summer, has fallen ill and has gone to Sicily, leaving his resignation in the hands of his successor. Thus in eleven months no fewer than four out of eleven members of the Gliottli cabinet have died or resigned from ill health, a fact which has much impressed the superstitious who believe implicitly in the evil eye.

THE SHORTEST SOLDIER.

How a Young Kansan Under the Recruited Him Got Into the Army.

Charles L. Dagan of Kanta, Kan., a young army recruit who enlisted in Kansas City and left with a squad of recruits for Jefferson Barracks, near St. Louis, is the shortest soldier in the United States army. His height is five feet two inches. He was accepted only on the recommendation of President Roosevelt, to whom he wrote explaining the situation after he had been rejected on account of his height at the auxiliary recruiting station at Topeka early in April.

Dagan had entertained the hope of becoming a soldier for a number of years. He is now twenty-two, and has no one dependent upon him; he went to the recruiting station to enter the service. He passed a rigid examination save for his height, but the news that for this reason he could not become a soldier did not deter him. He had decided to become one and promptly wrote to President Roosevelt explaining the situation. He also wrote an earnest appeal to the chief executive, and the frank, earnest manner in which he couched his plea seemed to impress the army when a discrepancy of two inches in the required height existed. The minimum height as stipulated by the war department is five feet four inches.

Dagan is of almost perfect build, weighs 120 pounds and has a five inch chest expansion. He expressed a desire to enlist in the cavalry and he went to the Philippines. At Jefferson Barracks he will be assigned to a regiment of cavalry where he will be preparing for orders for Philippine service.

A Giant Speon.

It is said that the tallest speon in Italy was the wooden spoon stirrer at the monastery. The old spoon at Bilo is famous. It has been used for more than a century and has had predecessors of its own kind for centuries. It has stirred soup for thousands of speons who have sought safety in the monastery from the persecution of the Turk. The monastery was built in medieval times. It has a curious kitchen. It is a room twenty feet square, but nearly one hundred feet high. Its rock walls gradually slope together as they rise, forming a dome with a small altar at the top of the dome. A depression in the earth floor holds the fire, made of pine logs. Over the fire is hung a great iron caldron, which holds more than twenty gallons of soup. The cook climbs up on a big square stone and stirs the soup with the great spoon. The smoke from the fire goes up the chimney to the top of the dome and out through the opening—Boston Transcript.

Humming Birds in London.

Considerable interest is excited by the humming birds now on view at the zoological gardens. Fifty-three of these tiny, fragrant birds were taken on board from Venezuela. Many died on the voyage, but the fittest survived, and now are housed in cages at the gardens. At the time of writing seventeen are shown in two large glass cases furnished with flowering plants and placed in the insect house, or perch can be kept at a high temperature. Moths in a cage near look bigger than these small birds. It is to be hoped that the birds may be able to fly out of the cage and into the open air.

Remarkable Engineering Feat.

Great has been reached at a depth of 1,250 feet in the London Underground railway at Seaham harbor, in England, after a remarkable engineering feat. Overly three hundred tons of enormous quantities of water, forming a quick sand, it was found necessary to freeze the ground to a depth of nearly 500 feet. Twenty-eight holes were bored in a circle about the shaft to a depth of 454 feet, and freezing tubes were inserted. Brine was the medium used to extract the heat from the strata. The length of time required to form a wall of ice was 185 days, the wall being maintained for 533 days. In the shaft bottom the frozen sand was so hard that it could be penetrated only by blasting.

A Pair of Elephant Tusks.

An extraordinary pair of elephant tusks lately shown in London measure an angry eleven feet five inches and eleven feet respectively, but each has a girth at the base of only eighteen and a half inches, and together they weigh only 170 lbs. The length and slenderness of these tusks as contrasted to the usual comparison of stout stout ones have suggested to Professor Rowland Ward that there may be two races of elephants in east Africa, the supposed origin of the tusks indicates that the elephant differed from the common ones in not digging for roots.

TO KEEP THE SKIN IN HEALTH

Avoid Pore-Clogging Powders, and Cure all Skin Irritations and Eruptions With Dr. Chase's Ointment

It is quite possible that, while you know of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, psoriasis and the most severe forms of itching skin disease, you may have overlooked its value as a beautifier of the skin.

There are minor forms of skin trouble, such as rough, red skin, chafing, chapping, pimples, blackheads, blotches, irritation, or poisoning from the clothing, etc., which disfigure and form a starting point for serious trouble.

A few applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment at such times not only remove these blemishes, but also restore the health and beauty of the skin, and positively prevent further development.

Miss C. Stanley-Jones, professional masseuse and nurse, 283 Simcoe street, Toronto, Ontario, writes: "In my occupation as a nurse I have come across many cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has been used with extraordinary results. One case I recall was that of a child of sixteen months, who was in a bad way with scaly head. It was a really nasty case, causing the child to suffer very much, and to be very troublesome. I persuaded the mother to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in ten days the child was entirely cured."

"Another case was that of a lady who was greatly troubled with eczema on the face. The doctor was doing her with medicine, which was doing much harm. In this case cure was effected in seven days with only one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Both of these cures were lasting."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is delightfully pure and creamy, is pleasant to use, and is rapidly absorbed. It acts as a food for the skin, making it soft, smooth and velvety. By its soothing, antiseptic and healing properties it allays inflammation, relieves itching and heals sores, wounds and ulcers; 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Unhappy Speech
"That speech was ill-advised," said a legislator, referring to a colleague's too outspoken address. "It reminds me of a speech that a widow made to her new husband on the honeymoon."

"Oh," she sighed, throwing herself into the man's arms, "how happy poor, dear James would be if he could only know by what an agreeable little creature he has been replaced."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Military Doctor (to Private Jones, of the Buffs)—Well, my man, what's the matter with you?

Private Jones—Pains in the back, sir.

An Attractive Arrangement

A small, square, woven stool or box with a decorative plant above it. The stool has a flat top and four short, slightly curved legs. It is made of a dark, textured material, possibly wicker or woven straw. Above the stool, there is a decorative illustration of a plant with long, pointed leaves and small flowers, possibly a lily or a similar species. The entire scene is enclosed in a simple rectangular frame.

Even clothes trees
come in wicker

MORE and more shapes are being experimented with on a wicker chair, the kind of trees being one of the latest pieces of furniture to come out in it.

Perhaps the most interesting are wonderfully attractive, while the new tables, some of them with shelving bases, are sturdy affairs, rather like the kind of tables that were first made, which became unwrapped at the slightest provocation.

Personal chairs, too, are being made, those little sitting chairs and tables and couches (and a dozen other things besides) that were once so popular for their matting, so closely woven that it wears almost as well as a bit of tapestry.

Deep pieces come in, too, and are popular. A deep chair, for example, is a couch with a chair back at one end, and a deep chair, with an arm at the other end, is a couch with a chair back at the other end.

Wicker chairs, with arms made as part of the rounded back, make ideal porch chairs. Tables and tea-carts and flower stands—all come to match.

One of the newest styles is an adaptation of the bamboo furniture of a dozen years ago. It is made of bamboo, pulled straight and easily. This new kind is not any limitation, but is so cleverly made that it is as strong as the old. It promises to be quite popular.

Another style is made of the woven rattan seats, are among the least popular and most satisfactory. From an artistic point of view, they are the best kinds of summer furniture made. The seats are made of woven cane, and almost black unless you get a strong light on it.

There is a head of wicker comes wire-grass furniture, used for half a dozen years. It is made of wire, and is almost all white. Threads of the strong grass from the pampas of South America, almost unbreakable rope. Then it is painted white, and is very durable. It is a shade and that always of course.

In plain wooden furniture, folding chairs, are the most popular. They are made with high top, not only because they are so easy to pack away out of the way, but also because they are so easy to take up, take up little or no room with many a family is turned into a room for a few days, and a few days (a few warm days), and sewing tables, and so on. In fact, they are used out for a summer form.

Pretty Ideas in Lace

AN OUTCOME of the pretty idea of setting a bit of lace in the heart of a buttonhole rose is seen in an occasional one of the many exquisite French designs sent over for spring. A tiny lace probably trims, narrow insertion dividing it into stripes, and motifs something the shape of a small palm leaf laid here and there upon the yoke.

In the centre of these motifs the lace is deftly cut away, to make room for a bit of exquisitely embroidered stuff. While many of the patterns of the lace—only repeating it in a lighter way—

HOME FASHION dictates in china decoration just as in everything else, and fortunately just now discerned and described by a rich and artistic designs.

Decorations of the most impressive and floral garish flowers that a few years ago brought china painting into disrepute, are now the work that is being done by young women who are not only doing a more favorable comparison with the productions of the great potteries.

Decorations of the most bold and stunning, glaring designs; tattered with the most brilliant colors, where the flowers and fruits in color melt into shadowy backgrounds. Harsh and brilliant, and in some cases by no means but exquisite, soft tints are used, and the result is a decorative painting is more or less past.

Not in drawing of so little importance as in the coloring, and the models are all the rage, and the models are so strong and bold, and the designs are so taken in the woods and fields, or from real, living fish and game, that the designs are of a high quality was made plain, by a recent visit to a famous factory, where more than three thousand lessons were

A Revival of Block Work

OLD-FASHIONED block work has been revived for some of the pietiest of the little aprons so many women don at the slightest excuse.

Perhaps the apron is made without a ruffle, blocks of a uniform size put on in a simple pattern and stitched neatly. Or the saucy little ruffle which makes so attractive a thing of an apron may be made quite elaborate and decorative, or even the apron proper trimmed with blocks, the ruffle left plain, but made very decorative.

Whichever way it is made, an apron of that sort is as quaint as a bunch of

With many of these students the work was not a pastime; others arranged to make a good income by the sale of their china, but in every case the artistic advance of the present day work is evident.

Flowers and fruits were chiefly used in the decorations. But such flowers and fruits!

A set of bouillon cups, for instance, were done in Russia set in panels, the flowers of soft, delicate shades blending into a misty background in the same tone. Between each panel were blue and gold jewels in conventionalised design.

Art Nouveau Effects

What is called the art nouveau is also popular. This is usually broadly conventionalized heads and rich gold and color effects.

Many pleasing novelties are now painted.

There are buttons and belts in jeweled work, many of them being decorated to match the costume. As a rule, the turquoise enamel is the most successful, though all shades can be used. One attractive set was in dull black with blue jewels.

Economy in Long Gloves

WHEN the hands of elbow gloves, especially black or tan ones, grow shabby, cut the long wrists off carefully with a pair of scissors, leaving the wrist which came out last winter. This may be done by simply stitching a flat hem at the edge and attaching a clasp or two. Short gloves minimize the loss at the joining place hidden under a wrinkle.

Or new short gloves may be stitched upon the old long wrists.

In either case the second pair is given a small cost as compared to the cost of the first.

bookmarkers attached to ribbons, necklaces with china hearts on gold chains, haspin and ring holders and matchboxes to hold safety matches are all made of wood. The artist employed miniature work, either in flowers or jewels. Heads are not much used any more. Frequently the holders are decorated to match a room.

For example, a vase of flowers for a fern should, as a rule, have rather bright colors to bring out the subdued greens of the plant. One very artistic violet holder was painted to resemble a basket of violets. The purple flowers rising in a thick border from rich green leaves.

There is a touch of spectacular effect, also, can any one offer a better time than June for a wedding? Nature, in combination leaves nothing to be desired. Given soft, balmy air, glorious blue sky, and the bride in her white gown and nosegay crowned hats, for the bridal party and guests alike, joined in the joyous dance, the wedding is an insurance—wedding brilliancy is inevitable.

You live in town and cannot be. Unfortunately that is if you really cannot. Nowadays, in the suburbs, at least, laws of fair proportions offers captivating chances for a little home ceremony under the trees.

True, the passing populace might prove intrusive; and no bride cares to have her solemn occasion of her life witnessed by curious strangers. But decorators are ingenious, and it is perfectly possible to have temporary vine and flower decked trellises about prying glances.

A Flower Setting

"Liquid rouge," comprising carmine, ammonia, water, rose water and spirits of rose, could I use this occasionally without injury to the skin?
Mrs. J. A. MacV.

A thorough cleansing of the face every evening with a camel's-hair brush, hot water and soap, will prevent the cream from stimulating a growth of hair. It should dispend with the almond oil, if, as you say, you think that hair would grow easily upon your face. Don't encourage such a growth. The cream itself is not a hair producer.

The rouge is harmless, applied as you dread to see it getting so gray. I now only wash it once a month, to see if that will help, and I rub vaseline in it before washing it. I am determined if I cannot get my hair to grow again, to wash it with the physician's prescription for lustrous hair to its natural color is perfectly harmless and will not injure the hair in any way, and if it is to be used every time the hair is washed? I have cut the recipe out of the paper, but have such a dislike to hair dyes or anything artificial that I cannot use it, and I am sure you will understand me if there is anything else that would help my hair before using this—having it kneaded, for instance?

During winter I dread to wash my face, as water seems to make it worse. I want to ask you if the orange-flower cream would be all right in a case of this kind; if so, will you send me some, but would not give Henna Hair Stain.

Take 1/2 ounce of henna leaves, steep in a pint of boiling water for twenty minutes. Let stand until it gets cold. Strain the liquid. Apply to the roots of the hair by the aid of a small sponge.

Then, with an ordinary hair brush, distribute the henna through the hair. Care must be taken to spread the stain evenly, or the coiffure next day will be covered with a succession of reddish streaks.

A thorough drying, either in the sun, or by heat, concludes the tinting process.

The condition of your skin in winter is evidently a matter of your general health. Get as much fresh air as possible every day, regulate your diet strictly and be most particular about your bathing. Cleanse your face every night with a little warm, soft water and use a soap—that will prevent any danger of the cream's stimulating a growth of hair, although it is not a hair-producer.

causes a nervous or run-down condition, and, in such instances, a tonic should be taken to build up the system. For external use, use freely a good powder, which will tend to prevent over-secretion of the sweat glands. Bathing with cologne and water, or a.cohol and water, in equal parts, is also helpful. The use of exfoliants, which are particularly beneficial in developing the forearm, will appear soon, if they have not already appeared by the time your letter goes to press.

Concerning Hair Stains
 Mrs. A. M. K.—Either of the stains are good. If your hair is naturally rather oily, I should use the walnut stain.
 Your druggist should have no difficulty in filling either prescription.

Restoring Bleached Hair.

apply a stain. I should not advise you to experiment with a stain yourself, under the circumstances you quote.

Landruff in the Eyebrows.

Would you be so kind as to give me a remedy for dandruff in the eyebrows? My eyebrows are very thin, and having applied Olive oil, it did a little good in the way of increasing their thickness, but left patches of dandruff. I sometimes wash these with castle soap, borax and warm water, but the lotion seems fruitless. Would you be so very kind as to give me a harmless remedy? I read of various remedies, but I don't like to use them, but do not like to use it, as it would "promote an abundant supply of dandruff."

For Thin, Oily Hair

Would you be so kind as to give me something for my hair?

It is very thin, and becomes oily a day or two after it is washed. When it is oily it falls out very much. The color of my hair is brown, and I would not like to use anything that would tend to make it become darker.

The formula to remove dandruff, published recently in these columns, is a very good one for your case. Take care not to get any of it in your eyes.

Vaseline—the crude yellow kind—may be rubbed into them at night, the loosened flakes of dandruff gently scraped away in the morning and the eyebrows regularly shampooed with hot water and soap.

best thing to counteract the tendency to come out—falling hair always tells of disordered circulation in the scalp skin. The egg shampoo established elsewhere (in these columns) is particularly good for oily hair, and the lotion, given under "Gertrude's" letter, is the best remedy of the sort I know of. Tell your druggist to omit the tincture of cochineal, and the lotion should not give your hair a "burnt tint" it otherwise would.

My hair is getting very gray, and the cause seems to be from its being too dry. I had a very nice shade of auburn hair, and Lacombe fair dates are October 3 and 4. Keep it in mind.

The Barnett avenue sewer is making progress. The contract has been let, the pipe is being made, and other inseparable preliminaries are nearing completion.

Work is being pushed rapidly on all buildings now under construction in Lacombe. The brick work on the new school building will probably be finished before cold weather sets in. The Adelphi hotel will be ready for occupancy in a short time. The Urquhart, Day, and Denike block are nearing completion and will be finished in a few weeks.

The bazaar held in Day's hall by the Women's Guild of St. Cyprian's church on the 26th was a very successful affair. During the day many useful and ornamental articles were offered for sale. In the evening a full house turned out for the literary and musical program. Refreshments were served to all who wished at a moderate price. The bazaar netted a handsome return, about $125 in all.

The early fall storms have laid much of the grain down, so that it is slow cutting as it has to be cut one way, but the past week has brought fine harvest weather and good progress has been made in cutting. Reports show that the grain is of excellent quality in the main and will nearly all be saved. At this time all indications point to this year's crop being a record one for Alberta as a whole.

Natural Gas at Calgary.

Calgary, Sept. 26.—On Tuesday afternoon gas was struck by the Calgary Natural Gas Company, which has been drilling for gas for the last fourteen months. Although gas has been expected for the last few months, the actual discovery came as a surprise.

There can be no doubt about the nature of the discovery or the commercial value of it. Mr. Dinguian and the company have been very optimistic in this matter, but at the same time have never misled the public by false hopes. Here is the definite statement made by Mr. Dinguian, the managing director of the company:

Gas made its appearance in the big gas well yesterday (Tuesday) morning and has been coming in in constantly increasing volume ever since. As yet only the top or upper surface of the gas horizon has been touched and that as they go down deeper both volume and pressure will no doubt enormously increase. The gratifying feature is that the constant supply and pressure demonstrate the certainty that a true gas horizon has been reached and that it means permanency of supply.

Bentley.

The Gull Lake road has been a fright of late. The superabundance of moisture on the freshly worked road has taken it to pretty near the limit for bad roads.

Major McPherson left Wednesday for southern Alberta to inspect for the government some fields of grain on which claims for haildamages have been made.

Harvesting is the order of the day in the Blindman valley. Some have finished cutting while others have just begun this week. From present indications this valley will have more grain to market this year than ever before. Of course the down grain makes slow cutting.

On the occasion of their departure for England recently a farewell reception was given to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thorp Sr., who have spent the past year visiting their sons here. A jolly boating party was made up and a large part of the day was spent on the lake. In the evening a fine banquet was served. As tokens of the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Thorp are held a gold watch and chain were presented to Mr. Thorp and a gold locket and chain to Mrs. Thorp.

Plans of Great Bridge Were Defective.

Ottawa, Sept. 24.—Persistent rumors are in circulation here that two eminent engineers of the world pronounced the plan of the Quebec bridge unsafe a long while ago. It is said that letters are in existence pointing out faults in the plans from the constructor of the famous Eiffel tower in Paris, and from the engineer of the Forth Bridge. They say that the bridge would never support its own weight without a pier in the centre of the river. More may yet be heard of the matter if, as alleged, the original of the letters are in Ottawa.

A New Trail to the Yukon Capital.

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—After two years' hard work, the mounted police have put an eight foot trail from the Peace river through the Rocky mountains, giving a route from Edmonton to Dawson entirely over Canadian territory. Col. White, superintendent of the mounted police, received a telegram from Commissioner Perry, with the police, announcing his arrival on the Pacific coast, after a seven hundred mile ride on the trail from Edmonton.

A trail has been built to Hazelton, where it joins the trail along the route of the telegraph line to Dawson and thus continues to the Yukon capital.

The trail, besides affording access to a hitherto inaccessible portion of the country, will be useful to justice purposes in transporting prisoners, who would be able to take advantage of territorial immunity if taken over the usual route of travellers, which crosses American territory.
